

TRESORYS KERNOW UPDATE AND CREATIVE DATES FOR THE DIARY

Eight fantastic Lostwithiel-based creative and cultural projects have been commissioned by FEAST, as part of the Cornwall-wide Tresorys Kernow project.

The spring season of creative wonderment was kick-started with The GLAM Weekend. The feast of activities began on Friday with A Chat, a Dance, a Cup of Tea, While Away Some Time with Me led by Sam Lawrence and Lois Taylor of Dance Centred.

Those who took part enjoyed a cream tea, sponsored by Trewithan Dairy, and were invited to talk about hopes, dreams, music, life and Lostwithiel and then share a short dance. Sam and Lois will be returning to Lostwithiel later this spring with their funded Curious Creatures dance and movement project, see the calendar of events for details overleaf.

As part of the GLAM weekend programme, it was great to have Pete Isaac, of Jelly Jazz, DJ for us in on the Friday evening at Lostwithiel Social Club, we hope he will be returning later in the summer. We hope to get DJ Cat La Chappelle from Bar Silo into town soon too.

Contemporary Artist Gary Marshall-Stevens, creator of UNIT 3, inspired children and families with his Children's Treasure Hunt Art Jam. St Bart's churchyard was filled with ancient treasure maps, pirate costumes, and in the Art- Jam Reboot on Saturday morning, Reverend Sheila was captured and taken away in a giant pirate ship.

As part of the Tresorys Kernow programme, Gary and Unit 3 have been awarded funding to commission and host an artist's residency, entitled RESIDENT, which will take place between the 16th May and 26th June. Check out next month's newsletter and visit unit3.org.uk to find out more.

On Saturday afternoon, St Barts Church was filled with poetry and acoustic music, created and performed by Simon Mole and Geko from Poetry Picnic. And the evening saw the debut of Kowsel, Lostwithiel's very own spoken word night hosted by Tara Montane, visit Kowsel on Instagram and Facebook. The Kowsel project is being facilitated by artist Antonia Eden with support from Sam Lawrence.

The Kowsel debut event included a "Page to Stage" workshop for poets, writers and readers who wanted to develop their performance techniques, build confidence and share their work in a safe and supportive atmosphere. Two more workshops and events are planned for May and June, see the calendar of events to find out how to get involved, or book to enjoy the performances.

We would like to thank St Barts Church and Lostwithiel Social Club for supporting this event.

GLAM, which stands for The Guild of Lostwithiel Artists, Makers, Movers and Musicians is another Tresorys Kernow project, which aims to support, develop and promote the creative community of Lostwithiel. Other funded projects include:

LOSTWITHIEL is....

Have you seen the posters around for 'Lostwithiel is...'? This is an opportunity for you to share and exhibit your own creative interpretation of what Lostwithiel means to you. It is open to all - children and adults. Artist Red Peters is inviting everyone to submit their creations. They can be paintings, drawings, sculptures, textiles, poetry, collage, printing, and photography etc. They can be any style - e.g., abstract works, landscapes, cartoons, illustration. Pieces need to be submitted by the 17th May and will be displayed around the town as part of an arts trail from 10th -12th June. Leaflets with more info available at Choughs, Watts Trading, and Zakka or visit <https://www.red-louise.art/events> or email lostwithielartstrail@outlook.com

The Tin Red Line

Created by Sian Cornish, this is an exciting project linking industry, landscape and textiles through the metal tin and the colour red. Did you know that tin was used as a mordant (fixative) in the natural dye process hundreds of years ago? Join Sian in celebrating the mining industry of Cornwall and its global trade links, turning silks red through the alchemy of natural dyeing. To find out how to book to take part in the workshop on Saturday 14th May, www.lancasterandcornish.co.uk/products/the-tin-red-line

Other projects include 10 objects, a collaboration between Fiona Chivers (who illustrated the image to the right), Marion Parish and Jane Spurr. 10 objects will bring to life, through performance and audio recordings, objects from Lostwithiel Museum.

Also, David Guiterman has been granted funding to update and reprint the Walks Around Lostwithiel booklet, which takes participants on a series of walks in the Lostwithiel area and explains the historical significance of the features passed. All proceeds from the sales of the booklets will support any local charitable organisations which sell them, if you would like to sell the booklets contact david.guiterman@gmail.com

And last but by no means least, Margot Hartley, will be launching her Art & Craft Chain project on the 21st May, which will join up creative workshops across the town and that afternoon, the Church Rooms will host an art and craft sale, showcasing, and with the opportunity to buy, the work of the the many makers, illustrators and ceramicists who live and work in Lostwithiel.
